

Parents as Teachers™

Speakers Bureau

As a generalist in fundraising, Maggie Probert has a breadth of experience that spans more than 25 years in the nonprofit arena. A Certified Fund Raising Executive, she guides the development goals and activities of the national Parents as Teachers office, drawing on her extensive background with local affiliates of national organizations.

In addition to general fundraising, Probert's expertise includes grants management, annual giving, membership campaigns and organizational branding. She understands the relationships and coordination between local and nationwide efforts, and works to ensure that the intent of gifts is honored so that public trust is established and preserved.

Probert will explore the changing philanthropic landscape, its impact on charities and those whose lives they touch. She will also discuss trends in charitable giving and the importance of communicating the "value" of giving in order to promote a culture of philanthropy.
